Boy Brings Suit for Loss of Leg

James Paxton Demands $25,000 From Utah Consolidated Mining Company.

Damages in the sum of $25,000 are demanded by James Paxton from the Utah Consolidated Mining company in a suit filed yesterday in the District court, on account of personal injuries sustained by the plaintiff when in the employ of the defendant corporation.

Paxton is a boy only 14 years old, and the suit is brought by his mother, Alice Paxton, whom Judge Hall granted leave to act as guardian ad litem for the purpose of prosecuting the case. The complaint alleges that on July 4, and for some time prior thereto, Paxton was in the employ of the company as a helper at its smelter furnaces in Bingham canyon, receiving wages in the amount of $2.25 a day, and that on the date mentioned he was run over by a coal car, resulting in his leg being broken and so badly maimed that it had to be amputated.

It is alleged that the accident was wholly due to carelessness on the part of the company in failing to keep its premises properly lighted and neglecting to warn of the approach of its cars. It is further claimed that the boy had been advised by his superiors that no cars would run on the day in question, resulting in his having failed to exercise ordinary caution to avoid an accident. The plaintiff is represented in the case by Attorneys Powers & Straup and Cannon, Irvine & Snow.

Did Not Know He Was Wanted.

When C. H. Hammer strayed into the city and county building yesterday morning, he did so blissfully ignorant of the fact that Deputy Sheriff Burdick had been looking out for him for several weeks. Creed-Dickson Sectional Book Case

In selecting a book case look first to the doors. The doors open out and downward, so designed that they cannot stick, when open, the doors form strong, rigid shelves, upon which books may be laid in a row. When books are removed the doors shut automatically. The entire back of the book is exposed, and the book is easily accessible.

A five-piece section can be tipped sideways, forward or backward, or moved about the room without coming apart. It is practically dust proof. Built by mechanics and finished to suit any style of furniture.
